

Dream up a door

Get ready to use your imagination! In stories, doors often lead to magical new worlds. Can you start a story by creating a door and thinking about what's on the other side of it? Behind your door there could be a forest, a beach, or even a brand-new place that hasn't been invented yet!

Change your story

Draw your door here

Your door could be a trapdoor, a hole underground or the entrance to a spaceship! Maybe it has handles or an interesting lock or opens by magic!

Dream up a world

What's behind the door?

Circle a word to describe what's behind the door or write a word of your own.

The place behind this door is ...

a jungle in space underwater a home _____

The beings that live there are ...

humans aliens animals robots _____

Behind my door it feels ...

hot cold wet smelly _____

I would describe it as...

magical colourful dark weird _____

Ask the adult helping you to share your work with us by tagging us on f/nationalliteracytrust or @Literacy_Trust

Scan here for more storytelling activities to enjoy at home.

Supported by

Supported using public funding by
ARTS COUNCIL ENGLAND